

The library system of AGH University of Science and Technology consists of the Main Library and 17 libraries functioning at faculties or non-faculty units.

These libraries collect and provide access to books, journals and special collections in accordance with the research and teaching activities in the faculties.

The rules for making the collections available are specified in the regulations approved by the head of the organisational unit.

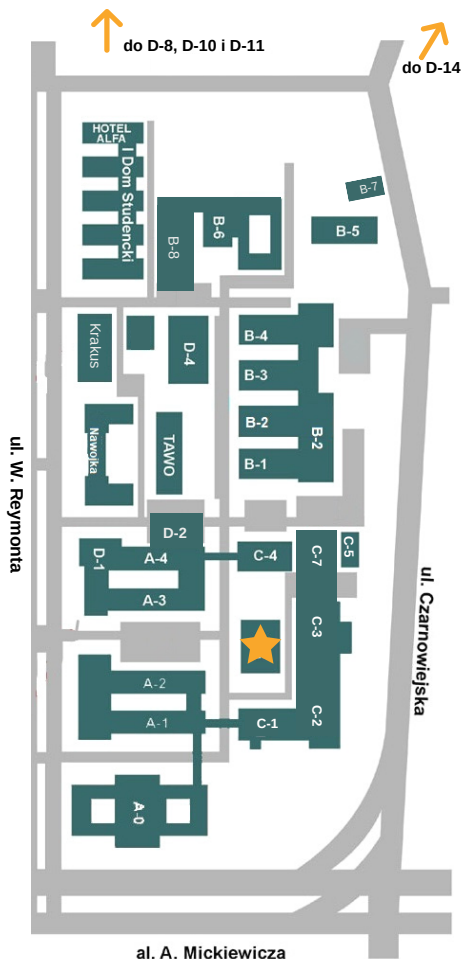

AGH library computer catalogue is a source of information about the collections of faculty libraries. In it, one can find information about the publications acquired in all the libraries listed in the catalogue (except WIMiR and SJO).

The status "At the Faculty" in the computer catalogue means that the library listed in the location has the item in its collection, but information about its availability can only be obtained from the faculty library in question.

Additional information can be found in Branch Libraries site:

This brochure informs only about the libraries available to AGH University of Science and Technology students.
